Over the last years, we have supported and advised Civil Aviation actors such as governments and their authorities, providing them audits and feasibility studies to upgrade their governance in a sake of safety and efficiency enhancement.

Egis Avia has also regularly provided technical assistance to governments through the job training of inspectors (Kenya, Jordan...).

In developing countries, we continuously offer our know-how and make the most of our expertise to assist them with an aim to developing their air transport plans, reorganising their Civil Aviation institutions or helping them to elaborate new regulations. (Morocco, Gabon and Kenya but also Albania and other CARDS countries in Balkans)

In Europe, Egis Avia works alongside for governmental institutions and Civil Aviation Authorities to evaluate policies costs and benefits. It also drafted for the European Commission a European Aviation Code. Furthermore, Egis Avia took part in the harmonisation of Airport Performance Indicators under the supervision of Eurocontrol (Environmentally Sustainable Airport Operations Project).

Last, but not least, Egis Avia has been selected by the European Commission and Mediterranean Countries (MEDA) to support their common objective to develop their air transport network and promote economic integration in the global air transport market.
